Dear Panther Family,

The purpose of higher education is to positively impact society through the lives of our alumni, students, faculty, and staff.

UNI makes a positive difference in the world by providing a high quality learning environment that empowers our students to discover where they belong. We also fulfill our purpose by advancing knowledge, promoting creativity, and solving problems in partnership with the people, schools, communities, and industries we serve.

Commencement offers an opportunity to pause and celebrate the accomplishments of our students and the important work we do to prepare graduates for lives of purpose through their careers and in their homes and communities.

To the graduates of the Class of 2018—Congratulations! You make us all Panther Proud. We hope you stay engaged with your Alma Mater. University Honors Program

Graduates wearing gold University Honors medallions are recipients of designations from the University Honors Program. The designation of University Honors with Distinction indicates the completion of at least thirty credit hours of honors-level course work throughout a student's undergraduate study. The designation of University Honors indicates the completion of at least eighteen credit hours of honors-level coursework. Both designations require the completion of an undergraduate honors thesis. Students earning honors designations are noted throughout the commencement program along with their thesis titles.

Graduation with Honors

Three levels of honors are awarded to students on graduation from a bachelor's degree curriculum. To receive an honor rating, the student must earn no less than 55 semester hours of credit at this university.

The names of the students receiving honors are identified in the commencement program and on their academic transcript.

Summa Cum Laude

Students whose cumulative UNI grade point average places them in the top 3% of those students graduating from their academic major college/division will be awarded Summa Cum Laude. Recipients of this honor will wear a bronze medallion.

Magna Cum Laude

Students whose cumulative UNI grade point average places them in the top 4% through top 8% of those students graduating from their academic major college/division will be awarded Magna Cum Laude. Recipients of this honor will wear a purple cord.

Cum Laude

Students whose cumulative UNI grade point average places them in the top 9% through top 15% of those students graduating from their academic major college/division will be awarded Cum Laude. Recipients of this honor will wear a gold cord.

Legacy Graduates

The University of Northern Iowa has a long and proud tradition of multi-generational family graduates. The Legacy designation (◇) in the commencement program signifies that a parent and/or grandparent is also a UNI graduate. Legacy information included in this program was submitted by the graduate.

Honorary Degree

Jane Jennison Elliott, Doctor of Humane Letters, honoris causa

Jane Jennison Elliott is an internationally known teacher, lecturer, race activist, and advocate for diversity education. She is a Riceville, Iowa native and UNI alumnae. Elliott earned a teaching certificate in 1954 and degree in Elementary Education in 1974 from the University of Northern Iowa.

Elliott was born in 1933 in Riceville, Iowa. Like many Panthers, after graduating from UNI, she returned to her home town of Riceville to give back to her community and to the state of Iowa and started teaching third grade. Jane Jennison Elliott developed a world-famous teaching strategy to demonstrate how easily prejudice, inequality, and racism can exist and thrive and how education about structural inequality can actually prevent it and change people's lives for the better. Elliott's "blue eyes/brown eyes" exercise was initiated in 1968 when, after the assassination of Reverend Dr. Martin Luther King Jr., Elliott realized that simply having a discussion about racism with her classroom full of all-white students would not effectively teach them about the cultural impact and legacy of prejudice, structural inequality, and racism.

In her now-famous exercise depicted in 1970 on Frontline, Elliott divided her white students up by eye color, gave one group of students an easily visible collar to wear and declared that those with collars were "lesser" that day. She told the class that students without the collars were "better" than those with the collars and gave them extra privileges, like more time at recess and extra helpings at lunch. Elliott also pointed out the missteps of the collared students, attributing every real, perceived, and imagined mistake to the color of their eyes, easily seen by the visible collars they were wearing. Students of all eye colors picked up on this modeling, creating interpersonal slurs attached to eye color and suggesting to their teacher how punishments could be developed to keep the "other eye color in line". After about a day of this division, Elliott reversed who wore the collars and watched, sadly, as both sets of students demonstrated cruelty and prejudice toward their fellow classmates when given the opportunity. Eventually, Elliott partnered with Stanford University, noting that student performance was lower on the day they wore the collar. When asked about why she developed this groundbreaking exercise, Elliott stated,

"Why eye color? Eye color and skin color are caused by the same chemical: melanin. There's no logic in judging people by the amount of a chemical in their skin. Pigmentation should have nothing to do with how you treat another person, but unfortunately, it does."

To take on the very uncomfortable and controversial topic of inequality and racial inequality in elementary school is impressive. Through her innovative teaching, Elliott bravely confronted inequality at the personal, social and structural levels. We now use words like microaggressions to describe how people sling interpersonal-level transgressions at one another. We can also point to extant research supporting Elliott's findings that everyday racism has a negative impact on people of color and can extrapolate these findings to the larger concept of structural inequality.

The media heavily publicized Elliott's classroom exercise in the late 1960s and beyond. She appeared on The Tonight Show with Johnny Carson in 1968 shortly after the Riceville Recorder first publicized her story, and in 1970 she ran her eye-color exercise to adult educators in the White House. The eye color classroom exercise made national news in 1970, when ABC aired its documentary, "The Eye of the Storm." Fifteen years later, PBS aired "A Class Divided," which included a reunion with the students featured in the earlier documentary which won her an honorary Hillman Prize for her pursuit of social justice "in service of the common good." Elliott has appeared on The Oprah Winfrey Show five times, most memorably in 1992, amidst the national racial tension following the Rodney King case, when the exercise was demonstrated with guests in the television audience.

This difficult but important work has been greeted with both praise and criticism. Following the national notoriety, many of Elliott's educational colleagues and community members were upset about the attention. Despite the mixed views, she continued with the experiment each year until she retired from teaching in 1985 to devote her full attention to promoting diversity awareness.

Elliott's important race activism has resulted in global recognition. She has brought her diversity insight to teachers, police officers, social workers and others across the US; Whites and Aboriginals in Australia; White Canadians and Native (First Nation) Canadians, and the United Kingdom. Ms. Elliott has received The Peabody Award, two Emmy awards, the National Mental Health Association Award for Excellence in Education, the German Findling Award, and an International Documentary Film Award in Amsterdam. Elliott has also conducted race activism training in the corporate world for General Electric, Exxon, AT&T, and IBM, as well as the FBI, IRS, US Navy, US Department of Education, and the US Postal Service.

Jane Jennison Elliott is the consummate example of what a four-year comprehensive institution like UNI can offer its students and its community. From a small classroom in racially homogenous Northeast Iowa, Jane Jennison Elliott has given of herself to the world.

Upon recommendation of the University Honorary Degrees Committee, the Faculty Senate, and the president of the university, and with the unanimous consent of the Board of Regents, it is a privilege to present Jane Jennison Elliott the Degree of Humane Letters, honoris causa.

The Academic Procession

The procession begins with the entrance of the candidates for degrees. Led by faculty marshals, the candidates for the degree of Bachelor of Arts, both the Teaching Program and the Liberal Arts Program, Bachelor of Fine Arts, Bachelor of Liberal Studies, Bachelor of Music and Bachelor of Science enter in groups, representing each of the undergraduate colleges. They are followed by the candidates for the highest degrees.

Students wearing a bronze medallion are those graduating summa cum laude (with highest honors), which represent the top three percent of each college by grade point average; or those graduating students receiving a Purple and Old Gold Award, given to those students who have excelled in scholarship or who have shown conspicuous achievement in particular areas.

The procession continues with representatives of the faculty.

The President's Party forms the final section of the academic procession. Headed by the commencement marshal, it includes the president; members of the Board of Regents, State of Iowa; administrative officers; the academic deans; and honored guests.

The individuals leading the procession of the graduates, the faculty and the president's party carry a mace which is a symbol of office. Those individuals are the student body president, the chair of the faculty and the university commencement marshal. Over long tradition, a mace is a symbol of authority and official celebration. The university mace is the largest of the three maces and it embodies the history and dignity of the entire university. The president wears a jeweled "Chain of Office" symbolizing the wearer is the leader of the institution. The silver chain includes links with the names of previous presidents of the institution, as well as previous names of the university.

The academic costumes worn trace their origin to the Middle Ages when long-sleeved hooded gowns were necessary for warmth in the unheated stone colleges. Over the centuries, much diversity occurred, and to bring some order, in the United States in 1894 an intercollegiate system of academic costume was agreed on, now adhered to by American institutions. According to this code, both the styling and colors of the regalia have significance.

The design of the gown indicates the degree. The bachelor's is a simple gown with a full sleeve. The master's gown is much like it except for the long sleeve which hangs loose. The doctoral gown is fuller and more elaborate. It has velvet edging and three velvet stripes on the full sleeve. The color of this velvet may be black or in the color appropriate to the degree.

Hoods, which are worn over the gowns, are similar for all degrees, although differing slightly in length. The candidates for the bachelor's degrees usually do not wear the hood. The hood has a velvet edging which indicates the area of the degree, and the inside or lining of the hood is satin in the colors of the college or university granting the degree.

A partial list of the degree colors to be found on the edge of the hood or the trimming on the doctoral gown is as follows:

- Apricot - Nursing
- Blue, light - Education
- Citron - Social Science
- Drab - Business
- Green Sage - Physical Education
- Maize - Agriculture
- Orange - Engineering
- Purple - Law
- White - Arts and Letters
- Blue, dark - Philosophy
- Brown - Fine Arts
- Copper - Economics
- Green - Medicine
- Lemon - Library Science
- Maroon - Family
- Pink - Music
- Scarlet - Theology
- Yellow Golden - Science and Consumer Sciences
